The Honorable Henry L. Marsh, III, Chairman of the Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Memorial Commission, and the Honorable Rosalyn R. Dance, Chairwoman of the Brown v. Board of Education Scholarship Committee, today announced jointly that the Special Subcommittee on the 50th Anniversary of Public School Closings in Virginia under the auspices of the Commission, will hold a Town Hall meeting in the auditorium of Granby High School, 7101 Granby Street, Norfolk, Virginia, on Wednesday, October 4, 2010, from 3:00 p.m. until 5:00 p.m. The Town Hall, themed "The Impact of Massive Resistance Yesterday, Today, and Tomorrow: A Public Conversation," is a part of the statewide commemoration of the 50th anniversary of the closing of public schools (Massive Resistance) and the 55th anniversary of the historic 1954 Brown v. Board of Education decision. Also, in accordance with House Joint Resolution 9 (2010), the Town Hall will be preceded by a combined business meeting of the MLK Commission and its subcommittees—the Special Subcommittee, Expenditure and Review Subcommittee, and Abraham Lincoln Bicentennial Subcommittee—at 1:00 p.m. in the Media Center at Granby High School.

Members of the Special Subcommittee include legislative and citizen members of the MLK Commission and the Brown Scholarship Committee, and representatives of the legal, business and corporate communities, the state and federal court systems, professional education organizations, public and higher education officials, educators, relevant state agencies and local governing bodies, community organizations, recent Brown scholars, and localities in which public schools were closed to avoid desegregation.

In 1959, after the U.S. Supreme Court's decision in Brown, Virginia embarked on a public policy of Massive Resistance in which public schools were closed in Charlottesville, Norfolk, Prince Edward County, and Warren County, depriving thousands of school children of an education. In Arlington, state public education funds were rescinded because public schools did not remain segregated. Although public schools were eventually re-opened in other areas of the Commonwealth, they remained closed in Prince Edward County for five years until the Supreme Court ordered the re-opening of the public schools in 1964. Despite the Supreme Court ruling in Brown that school segregation was unconstitutional, public schools in Virginia did not immediately begin to desegregate. In fact, all levels of government demonstrated intense resistance to compliance with the Brown decision, as the Commonwealth exhausted every possible means to avoid desegregation. The resistance lasted 10 years. After the formal end of Virginia's Massive Resistance, desegregation cases continued to be heard in federal courts until 1984, and the last case was finally dismissed in 2001.

The business meeting and Town Hall are open to the public. However, persons desiring to speak at the Town Hall are encouraged to register in advance with Mrs. Brenda H. Edwards, Division of Legislative Services, General Assembly Building, 2nd Floor, 910 Capitol Street, Richmond, Virginia 23219, no later than 12:00 noon on Tuesday, October 3, 2010, by email at bedwards@dls.virginia.gov or by phone at (804) 786-3591.
